The Mal-Raen System: Thunder of Gods

Format

Thunder of Gods is an Adeptus Titanicus narrative event. There will be 5 games over the weekend played at the Confrontation game level.

Sports

Every player is expected to maintain a high level of sporting behaviour. Each player has a responsibility to be clear in their actions and explanations, to pay attention to their opponent, to approach differing opinions in a respectful and calm manner and to attempt to complete your game within the allotted time frame.

Painting and Modelling

All models used must be painted and based in an appropriate manner. This means that non standard colour schemes are perfectly acceptable as long as they maintain the atmosphere of the Horus Heresy setting.

Proxies and Alternative models

Players may use third party, converted or scratchbuilt models within their army but they must be clearly identifiable and distinguishable from the other units in your army and appropriate as the unit they are representing. The aim is to allow freedom in the 'hobby' while maintaining a level of immersion and to avoid any negative effects on game play.

All models deemed not appropriate will be removed from the table and will count as dead for gaming purposes. If you have any models which you are worried about in terms of this then feel free to email Events@theimperialtruth.com and a decision will be made and/or advice given.

Gaming:

Each round every table will be playing the same scenario though there may be rules specific to the table being played on or the armies involved that add onto the scenario rules in play.

Each round will result in an overall win to either the Loyalists or the Traitors, the final result of this event will play into the narrative for the 2 day event. Please note that there may be occasions where players from the same faction are fighting each other. Even in the midst of a civil war Legios can be drawn into old enmities or just the confusion of a fluid battlescape can result in friendly fire.

If at any point you are drawn against someone you have already played or a club mate and you would prefer to play someone new then please make it known to the Event Organisers and new pairings will be worked out.

Tables will be drawn randomly for each round, if you have played on the table before and wish to move then please speak to an event organisers as soon as is practicable.

Grudges:

If you wish you may 'Grudge' an opponent, if accepted this will mean the next round you will automatically be paired together rather than relying on random chance to select your opponent. To do this both players need to inform the Event Organisers before the round starts, together to avoid any confusion.

Army List submission:

Army Lists should be submitted no later than 23:59 Sunday October 12th. This is to allow them all to be posted online before the event. Lists will need to be sent to Events@TheImperialTruth.com and be in the Plain text in the body of an email in the format shown below.
